Routledge Handbook of Integrated Project Delivery Derek Walker, Steve Rowlinson, 2019-07-26 The concept of integrated project delivery IPD has evolved as a result of the need for highly expert teams of people to collaborate to deliver extremely complex projects to manage expectations about delivery speed changes in governance standards and to take advantage of and manage expectations raised by rapid advances in technology All this demands effective change management This is the first Handbook to contextualise and thematically explore the concept with an emphasis on rigorous practical and theoretical validation The Handbook is divided into five sections each with a focus on several interconnected themes including An introduction to IPD concepts The foundational elements and characteristics of IPD People culture and collaboration as key ingredients to successful and effective IPD Technology and process aspects of relational contracting forms such as IPD New and relevant perspectives to IPD that have received scant attention to date Aspects and emerging issues that are rarely consciously considered in traditional project delivery due to the commercial imperative that drives firms and client organisations The Handbook offers both discussions of these key themes and also in depth research into construction and other industry project procurement and delivery that spans decades In addition the Handbook presents best and better practice but also includes insights into cutting edge experimental developments in technology and practices where proof of concept is currently being developed into emerging practice Contributing authors in this Handbook collaborate with the co editors to draw together an integrated set of chapters that align to deliver a coherent narrative of the IPD concept It is an invaluable reference for practitioners and academics alike and useful as core course content for numerous degree programs of study and professional development courses Proceedings of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineering Annual Conference 2022 Rishi Gupta,Min Sun,Svetlana Brzev,M. Engineering News and American Contract Journal ,2008 Architect ,2008 Team Selection for Integrated Project Delivery Allison Townes,2015

Recent developments in project delivery have shifted toward integrated approaches that improve the performance of project teams through supportive contractual agreements Integrated Project Delivery IPD is intended to align the interests of the project owner architect contractor and other principal parties through jointly developed goals and collaborative decision making However project owners do not fully understand the procurement and selection processes for ideal IPD teams This study assists in capturing the unique elements of IPD team assembly that support the success of project goals The premise of this study is that conventional approaches to team selection are insufficient for the selection of a high performance IPD team

A case study was chosen in order to understand why project owners might distinguish the process for an IPD team selection from conventional methods. The context of the case study encompasses the use of IPD workshops and design concept proposals as engaging means for team evaluation. Outside of the case study data collection also included expert interviews to document lessons learned in previous IPD projects. Opinions and ideas garnered from case study participants and expert interviewees serve as a basis for understanding the rationale for decisions regarding solicitation method selection criteria and teaming arrangement. Findings suggest that team selection criteria communicate expectations seen as vital to project goals. Based on the case study major categories for IPD team selection criteria are experience, due diligence and collaborative performance. Selection criteria can be evaluated through IPD workshops that reveal indicators on commitment to integrated design processes and potential for collaboration among multidisciplinary team members. Overall it appears that an unconventional approach to team selection influences early enactments of desirable ideologies in IPD projects. Outcomes show that despite the many variables within IPD team selection the measure of effectiveness is ultimately based on ability to satisfy project goals and program requirements. This study details key factors in team selection and will help IPD project owners to make informed decisions for future IPD projects. ENR., Design-build Barbara J. Jackson, 2011.
