Successful Response Starts with a Map National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Board on Earth Sciences and Resources,Mapping Science Committee,Committee on Planning for Catastrophe: A Blueprint for Improving Geospatial Data, Tools, and Infrastructure,2006-12-19 In the past few years the United States has experienced a series of disasters such as Hurricane Katrina in 2005 which have severely taxed and in many cases overwhelmed responding agencies In all aspects of emergency management geospatial data and tools have the potential to help save lives limit damage and reduce the costs of dealing with emergencies Great strides have been made in the past four decades in the development of geospatial data and tools that describe locations of objects on the Earth's surface and make it possible for anyone with access to the Internet to witness the magnitude of a disaster. However, the effectiveness of any technology is as much about the human systems in which it is embedded as about the technology itself. Successful Response Starts with a Map assesses the status of the use of geospatial data tools and infrastructure in disaster management and recommends ways to increase and improve their use. This book explores emergency planning and response how geospatial data and tools are currently being used in this field the current policies that govern their use various issues related to data accessibility and security training and funding. Successful Response Starts with a Map recommends significant investments be made in training of personnel coordination among agencies sharing of data and tools planning and preparedness and the tools themselves

W. Greene,2002 This handbook explains the importance and practice of using a geographic information system GIS in designing and implementing an effective response to large scale disasters including wildfires hurricanes earthquakes and terrorist attacks The handbook is organized according to the accepted methodology of disaster management which involves planning and identification mitigation preparedness response and recovery The first three stages involve tasks that an organization or community can perform before a disaster occurs The latter two tasks focus on postdisaster efforts The spatial display and analysis tools of GIS are ideal for assessing disaster risks consequences and responses GIS can display the location size value and significance of assets that may be impacted by disasters It can show the kinds of environmental atmospheric and other conditions that contribute to particular kinds of natural disasters GIS can also juxtapose a particular kind of asset with specific hazardous conditions over a wide geographic area thus allowing a precise calculation of potential loss in the immediate area With this kind of graphic depiction the choices about what to do and where to do it are clarified for those charged with making fast cost effective decisions This handbook details how GIS software features can be used at each stage of planning and response The use of GIS in a disaster is illustrated by its application in New York City in the days after September 11 where it was used to provide assistance to rescue and recovery teams The manual also profiles GIS based disaster modeling software packages now available at no cost to local communities Geographical Information Systems: Management issues and applications ,1999

Intelligent Systems for Crisis Management Sisi Zlatanova, Rob Peters, Arta Dilo, Hans Scholten, 2012-12-03

There have been major advances in technologies to support crisis response in the last few years. However many aspects related to the efficient collection and integration of geo information applied semantics and situation awareness for disaster management are still open. To advance the systems and make them intelligent an extensive collaboration is required between emergency responders, disaster managers, system designers and researchers. To facilitate this process the Geo information for Disaster Management Gi4DM conference has been organized since 2005. Gi4DM is coordinated by the Joint Board of Geospatial Information Societies JB GIS and the ad hoc Committee on Risk and Disaster Management. This volume presents the results of the Gi4DM 2012 conference held in Enschede the Netherlands on 13-15 December. It contains a selection of around 30 scientific and 25 best practice peer reviewed papers. The 2012 Gi4DM focuses on the intelligent use of geo information semantics and situation awareness.
