Monitoring Poverty and Social Exclusion in Scotland 2004 Guy Palmer, Jane

Carr, Peter Kenway, 2004 Action to reduce poverty and promote social inclusion is a key long term objective for the Scottish Executive. But how much progress has Scotland and its devolved government been able to make towards its declared goals? Monitoring poverty and social exclusion in Scotland 2004 updates the last Scotland report published in 2002 and provides an independent record of relevant trends over the past seven years. Compiled by the team responsible for the annual series of studies covering Great Britain the choice of subject areas in this report reflects the Scottish context. Data have been assembled for a range of different indicators covering low income, employment, education, health, quality of life and social cohesion. Each section uses graphs and maps to illustrate differences relating to social class, age, gender, ethnicity and local authority area

Monitoring Poverty and Social Exclusion 1999 Catherine Howarth, Joseph Rowntree Foundation, 1999

The first edition of this report set out a base line against which the Labour government's progress on tackling poverty and social exclusion could be measured. This edition tracks the indicators over a further year and indicate how the country is faring with respect to this important social issue
