Section 1: The Cold War

1. How did the Cold War begin? (pp. 718-720) (The Cold War began when the United States and the Soviet Union disagreed about the post-World War II division of Europe and about the future of Germany.)

Section 2: Politics, Ideology

2. How did the Soviet government compare to those in capitalist countries? (pp. 720-722) (The Soviet government had a central planning committee that made all major political decisions. The capitalist government had a central planning committee that made all major political decisions. A leader's thoughts control both. However, these two governments often approached decisions from the opposite, they planning by the government very differently.)

3. How did the capitalist government try to control its economy? (pp. 722-724) (The government controlled all production and choices from the same agency. This central planning committee made all the choices of where there would be stores, schools, where the cities would be, and where there would be roads. This central planning committee approached the economy like a single, centralized entity. The capitalist government controlled every aspect of the Soviet Union.)

4. How did the Soviet government compare to the United States? (pp. 724-726) (The Soviet government controlled all production and choices from the same agency. This central planning committee made all the choices of where there would be stores, schools, where the cities would be, and where there would be roads. This central planning committee approached the economy like a single, centralized entity. The capitalist government controlled every aspect of the Soviet Union.)
