Mind Body And Culture Anthropology And The Biological Interface:

Mind, Body and Culture Geoffrey Samuel, 1990-06-29 The author draws on his background in physics to suggest a scientific approach to aspects of human behaviour which have been traditionally described as cultural or social Mind, Body and Culture Samuel Geoffrey, 1990 Magical Consciousness Susan Greenwood, Erik D. Goodwyn, 2015-08-20 How does a mind think magically The research documented in this book is one answer that allows the disciplines of anthropology and neurobiology to come together to reveal a largely hidden dynamic of magic Magic gets to the very heart of some theoretical and methodological difficulties encountered in the social and natural sciences especially to do with issues of rationality This book examines magic head on not through its instrumental aspects but as an orientation of consciousness Magical consciousness is affective associative and synchronistic shaped through individual experience within a particular environment This work focuses on an in depth case study using the anthropologist's own experience gained through years of anthropological fieldwork with British practitioners of magic As an ethnographic view it is an intimate study of the way in which the cognitive architecture of a mind engages the emotions and imagination in a pattern of meanings related to childhood experiences spiritual communications and the environment Although the detail of the involvement in magical consciousness presented here is necessarily specific the central tenets of modus operandi is common to magical thought in general and can be applied to cross cultural analyses to increase understanding of this ubiquitous human phenomenon

Collective and Individual Responsibility Jurrien Mol, 2009-08-31 A long discussed theme concerning Ezekiel 18 and 20 is the relationship between collective and individual responsibility In the first half of the twentieth century the discussion appeared to end as a result of the introduction of the corporate personality by Henry Wheeler Robinson 1872 1945 This concept became heavily discussed and was dismissed on the grounds of its superseded theoretical basis The continuing use of the concept requires a redefinition and a new theoretical basis which is provided by the multimodal framework by Geoffrey Samuel from the field of cultural anthropology Before applying the concept Ezekiel 18 and 20 are studied extensively relative to textual criticism philology grammar and structural analysis Bodies and Persons Michael Lambek, Andrew Strathern, 1998-03-28 Large scale comparisons are out of fashion in anthropology but this book suggests a bold comparative approach to broad cultural differences between Africa and Melanesia Its theme is personhood which is understood in terms of what anthropologists call embodiment These concepts are applied to questions ranging from the meanings of spirit possession to the logics of witchcraft and kinship relations the use of rituals to heal the sick electric vampires and even the impact of capitalism There are detailed ethnographic analyses and suggestive comparisons of classic African and Melanesian ethnographic cases such as the Nuer and the Melpa The contributors debate alternative strategies for cross cultural comparison and demonstrate that there is a surprising range of continuities putting in question common assumptions about the huge differences between these two parts of the world Shaman and Sage Michael Horton, 2024-05-28 The first volume of Michael Horton's magisterial intellectual history of spiritual but not religious as a phenomenon in Western culture. Discussions of the rapidly increasing number of people identifying as spiritual but not religious tend to focus on the past century. But the SBNR phenomenon and the values that underlie it may be older than Christianity itself. Michael Horton reveals that the hallmarks of modern spirituality—autonomy, individualism, utopianism, and more—have their foundations in Greek philosophical religion. Horton makes the case that the development of the shaman figure in the Axial Age, particularly its iteration among Orphists, represented a divine self. One must realize the divinity within the self to break free from physicality and become one with a panentheistic unity. Time and time again, this tradition of divinity hiding in nature has arisen as an alternative to monotheistic submission to a god who intervenes in creation. This first volume traces the development of a utopian view of the human individual, a divine soul longing to break free from all limits of body, history, and the social and natural world. When the second and third volumes are complete, students and scholars will consult The Divine Self as the authoritative guide to the spiritual but not religious tendency as a recurring theme in Western culture from antiquity to the present. Cambridge Anthropology, 2003. Symbolic Categories and Ritual Practice in Hunter-gatherer Experiences, Thomas Widlok, Kazuyoshi Sugawara, 2001. Handbook of Psychological Anthropology, Philip K. Bock, 1994-10-30. The renewal of interest in psychological anthropology has called for a critical appraisal of past schools and approaches as well as an up-to-date review of the literature and evidence from contemporary research. This handbook, the first reference work devoted to this growing field, draws upon the work of distinguished contributors to examine historical, methodological, and critical material related to psychological anthropology. The volume is organized in two parts. The first is an historical overview of the field from 1920 to the present, outlining the major schools and approaches that have contributed to psychological anthropology. The second part is a series of chapters on research topics and methods such as child development, dreams, discourse, and the arts, showing the contribution of these topics to our understanding of the relationship between cultural and individual phenomena. The book reflects diverse viewpoints and provides a current treatment of ideas and techniques, critical examinations of research, and extensive bibliographic information. Contributions to Indian Sociology, 1992. Cosmologies of Suffering, Agita Lüse, Imre Lazar, 2007. The edited volume elaborates on a range of themes that emerged during a workshop of the 8th biennial of the European Association of Social Anthropologists in Vienna in 2004. Among these themes are the paradoxical permanence of transition in post-communist countries, the accompanying persistence of social suffering, and the structural conditions that give rise to it. A final theme focuses on the resources that people mobilize to cope with suffering and trauma. Ways of coping manifest a stance towards agency shared by sufferers from diverse post-communist regions such as ethnically divided Croatia, politically and economically unstable Zimbabwe, relatively more peaceful countries such as Hungary, Poland, and Slovenia, and finally two religiously unique areas in Siberia, Russia. Ethnographic accounts from these diverse settings testify that agency has often involved relinquishing reliance on one's self.

and turning towards a power higher than the self whether this is conceptualized through the lens of transcendence religion or cosmology This is a fascinating new series of ethnographic studies of specific mostly Eastern European and ex Soviet mystically orientated communities grappling with existential issues of suffering and meaning lessness Following the collapse of Soviet hegemonic communism and the well known revitalisation of traditional and New Age worldviews many people have embraced alternative cosmologies to generate new identities and meanings that are not dependant on empirically derived positivistic perspectives This book is major theoretical and ethnographically based contribution to understanding the profound social and personal transformations of worldviews and lived practices that have subsequently developed Professor Iain Edgar Senior Lecturer in Social Anthropology University of Durham UK

Changing Brain Structure Through Cross-cultural Learning Ruth Vassar Burgess, 2008 Changing Brain Structure Through Cross Cultural Learning The Life of Reuven Feuerstein Social Analysis ,1995 Journal of Ritual Studies ,2003 Divination and the Shamanic Story Michael Berman, 2008 Stories have traditionally been classified as epics myths sagas legends folk tales fairy tales parables or fables However the definitions of the terms have a tendency to overlap making it difficult to classify and categorize material For this reason a case can be made for the introduction of a new genre termed the shamanic story a story that has either been based on or inspired by a shamanic journey a numinous experience in non ordinary reality or one that contains a number of the elements typical of such a journey Other characteristics include the way in which the stories all tend to contain embedded texts often the account of the shamanic journey itself how the number of actors is clearly limited as one would expect in subjective accounts of what can be regarded as inner journeys and how the stories tend to be used for healing purposes Within this new genre it is proposed that there exists a sub genre shamanic stories that deal specifically with divination and examples are presented and analysed to support this hypothesis By means of textual analysis it can be shown they all share certain attributes in common the identification of which forms the conclusion of the work
