Nursing Assessment: Cardiovascular System

Structures and Functions of Cardiovascular System

- Heart
- Four chambers
 - It lies within the thorax in the mediastinal space that separates the right and left pleural cavities.
- Composed of three layers
 - Endocardium
 - Myocardium
 - Epicardium
- Pericardium (fibrous sac)
- Left ventricular wall 2-3 times thicker than right
- APPLICATION: which problem will kill faster? LEFT (pumping blood)
 - If in tissue (bruise), CANNOT move so CANNOT get PE
 - Stroke has to come from LEFT side
 - Immobile -risk for DVT

Blood Flow Through the Heart

- KNOW THIS!!!
- The right atrium receives venous blood from the inferior and superior venae cavae and the coronary sinus. The blood then passes through the tricuspid valve into the right ventricle. With each contraction, the right ventricle pumps blood through the pulmonic valve into the pulmonary artery and to the lungs.
- Blood flows from the lungs to the left atrium by way of the pulmonary veins. It then passes through the mitral valve and into the left ventricle. As the heart contracts, blood is ejected through the aortic valve into the aorta and thus enters the systemic circulation.
- STEPS:
 - 1. A red blood cell will come from either the superior vena cava or the inferior vena cava and enter into the right atrium
 - 2. the blood then flows across the tricuspid valve to the right ventricle
 - 3. the right ventricle then squeezes and ejects that blood cell into a vessel called the "pulmonary artery"
 - 4. the pulmonary artery splits into two vessels each going to the lungs
 - 5. as the red blood cell makes its way through the lungs, it returns through the pulmonary veins to the left atrium
 - 6. that blood is now oxygenated
 - 7. its picked up oxygen then goes across the mitral valve into the left ventricle, which does most of the work in terms of delivery of blood flow to the body
