Hlysnan The Notion And Politics Of Listening:

Hlysnan Berit Fischer, 2014 Racialization, Racism, and Anti-Racism in the Nordic Countries Peter Hervik, 2018-08-11 This book represents a comprehensive effort to understand discrimination racialization racism Islamophobia anti racist activism and the inclusion and exclusion of minorities in Nordic countries Examining critical media events in this heavily mediatized society the contributors explore how processes of racialization take place in an environment dominated by commercial interests anti migrant and anti Muslim narratives and sentiments and a surprising lack of informed research on national racism and racialization Overall in tracing how these individual events further racial inequalities through emotional and affective engagement the book seeks to define the trajectory of modern racism in Scandinavia

Architecture and Silence Christos P. Kakalis, 2019-08-23 This book explores the role of silence in how we design present and experience architecture Grounded in phenomenological theory the book builds on historical theoretical and practical approaches to examine silence as a methodological tool of architectural research and unravel the experiential qualities of the design process Distinct from an entirely soundless experience silence is proposed as a material condition organically incorporated into the built and natural landscape Kakalis argues that either human or atmospheric silence is a condition of waiting for a sound to be born or a new spatio temporal event to emerge In silence therefore we are attentive and attuned to the atmosphere of a place The book unpacks a series of stories of silence in religious topographies urban landscapes film and theatre productions and architectural education with contributed chapters and interviews with Jeff Malpas and Alberto Perez Gomez Aimed at postgraduate students scholars and researchers in architectural theory it shows how performative and atmospheric qualities of silence can build a new understanding of architectural experience The Political Possibility of

Sound Salomé Voegelin, 2018-11-01 The essay is the perfect format for a crisis Its porous and contingent nature forgives a lack of formality while its neglect of perfection and virtuosity releases the potential for the incomplete and the unrealizable These seven essays on The Political Possibility of Sound present a perfectly incomplete form for a discussion on the possibility of the political that includes creativity and invention and articulates a politics that imagines transformation and the desire to embrace a connected and collaborative world The themes of these essays emerge from and deepen discussions started in Voegelin's previous books Listening to Noise and Silence and Sonic Possible Worlds Continuing the methodological juxtaposition of phenomenology and logic and writing from close sonic encounters each represents a fragment of listening to a variety of sound works to music the acoustic environment and to poetry to hear their possibilities and develop words for what appears impossible As fragments of writing they respond to ideas on geography and migration bring into play formless subjectivities and trans objective identities and practice collectivity and a sonic cosmopolitanism through the hearing of shared volumes They involve the unheard and the in between to contribute to current discussions on new materialism and perform vertical readings to reach the depth of sound Race Sounds Nicole Brittingham Furlonge, 2018-05-15 We live in a world of talk Yet Race Sounds argues that we need to listen more not just hear things but actively listen particularly in relation to how we engage race gender and class differences Forging new ideas about the relationship between race and sound Furlonge explores how black artists including well known figures such as writers Ralph Ellison and Zora Neale Hurston and singers Bettye LaVette and Aretha Franklin among others imagine listening Drawing from a multimedia archive Furlonge examines how many of the texts call on readers to listen in print In the process she gives us a new way to read and interpret these canonical aurally inflected texts and demonstrates how listening allows us to engage with the sonic lives of difference as readers thinkers and citizens Intervening in discourses of African American and black feminist literatures where sound and voice dominate Furlonge shifts our attention to listening as an aural strategy of cultural social and civic engagement that not only enlivens how we read write and critique texts but also informs how we might be more effective audiences for each other and against injustice in our midst The result is a fascinating examination that brings new insights to African American literature and art American literature democratic philosophy and sound studies

What Now? Anne Barlow, 2016 To what degree are we able to listen to different kinds of intelligences and how can we incite receptivity How do we address the fact that the right to listen is relative and that the right not to listen or to remain silent is also a genuine stance Can we position listening as a political act And how do we further develop our ability to listen for what is left out and why What Now documents a program of sound installations audio works film screenings and performances that question our ability to listen held under the title The Politics of Listening in the second annual What Now symposium organized by Art in General in collaboration with the Vera List Center for Art and Politics as part of Alignment the Vera List Center's 2013 2015 curatorial focus theme

Listening for Democracy Andrew Dobson, 2014 Although much prized in daily conversation good listening has been almost completely ignored in that form of political conversation we know as democracy This book examines the reasons why so little attention has been paid to the listening aspect of democratic conversation explores the role that listening might play in democracy and outlines some institutional changes that could be made to make listening more central to democratic processes The focus on listening amounts to a reorientation of democratic theory and practice providing novel perspectives on enduring themes in democracy such as recognition representation power and legitimacy as well as some new ones such as silence Eschewing the pessimism of the realist turn in democratic theory the book shows how attention to listening can breathe life into the democratic project and help us to realise some of its objectives Drawing on practical examples and multidisciplinary sources the book shows how listening should be at the heart or representative and deliberative democracy rather than peripheral to them It develops a notion of dialogic democracy based on structured apophatic listening and meets the challenge of showing how this could be incorporated in parliamentary democracies What should we be listening out for This book addresses the question of political noise and uses the idea of recognition to develop an account of politics that takes us beyond the Aristotelian speaking being towards a Deweyan notion of the event around which publics coalesce The Politics of Listening Leah Bassel, 2017-03-30 This book explores listening as a social and political practice in contrast to the more common focus on voice and speaking The author draws on cases from Canada France and the United Kingdom exploring minority women and debates over culture and religion riots and young men in France and England citizen journalism and the creative use of different media and solidarity between migrant justice and indigenous activists Analysis across these diverse settings considers whether and how a politics of listening which demands that the roles of speakers and listeners change can be undertaken in adversarial and tense political moments The Politics of Listening argues that such a practice has the potential to create new ways of being and acting together as political equals who are heard on their own terms The book will appeal to students and scholars across a range of disciplines including sociology and political theory Listening Publics Kate Lacey, 2013-05-03 In focusing on the practices politics and ethics of listening this wide ranging book offers an important new perspective on questions of media audiences publics and citizenship Listening is central to modern communication politics and experience but is commonly overlooked and underestimated in a culture fascinated by the spectacle and the politics of voice Listening Publics restores listening to media history and to theories of the public sphere In so doing it opens up profound questions for our understanding of mediated experience public participation and civic engagement Taking a cross national and interdisciplinary approach the book explores how listening publics have been constituted in relation to successive media technologies from the invention of writing to the digital age It asks how new practices of listening associated with sound and audiovisual media transform a public world forged in the age of print Through detailed histories and sophisticated theoretical analysis Listening Publics demonstrates the embodied and critical activity of listening to be a rich concept with which to rethink the practices politics and ethics of media communication Thresholds of Listening Sander van Maas, 2016 This title addresses recent and historical changes in the ways listening has been conceived Listening having been emancipated from the passive subjected position of reception has come to be asserted as an active force in culture and in collective and individual politics The chapters here show that the exteriorisation of listening brought into relief by recent historical studies of technologies of listening involves a renegotiation of the theoretical and pragmatic distinctions that underpin the notion of listening A Coming Community Rowena De Silva, 2020 Max Neuhaus Times Square 1977 and Lawrence Abu Hamdan's The Hummingbird Clock 2016 are used to navigate the complexities that come with taking up a position of listening This position is inextricably tied to instances of connection rupture and fragmentation all of which are in constant relation to power These artworks become a starting point in the exploration of the politics of listening the idea that the threshold of audibility is constructed by political forces that engulf the public sphere coming to inform the ways we understand the self each other and our surroundings The boundaries of listening are explored from pain to freedom in the hopes of understanding what is at stake when engaging in listening Through observations and aural investigations I call attention to the ways in which sound
