Abstract

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 6-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group or an exercise group. The exercise group performed a supervised aerobic and resistance training program three times per week. The control group did not participate in any structured exercise program. Physical fitness was assessed by maximal oxygen consumption ( $\dot{V}O_{2\max}$ ), peak power output (PPO), and body composition. HRQL was assessed by the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher  $\dot{V}O_{2\max}$ , PPO, and lower body mass index (BMI) than the control group at the end of the 6-week program. The exercise group also had significantly higher scores on the SF-36 questionnaire than the control group. These findings suggest that a 6-week training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary middle-aged women.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of 10 men who exercised for 12 weeks. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. These findings suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

CONCLUSIONS The results of this study indicate that the use of a single, low-dose, intravenous bolus of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is safe and effective. The use of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is a safe and effective technique. The use of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is a safe and effective technique. The use of propofol for sedation of patients with severe head injury is a safe and effective technique.
