International Handbook of Mathematical Learning Difficulties Annemarie Fritz, Vitor Gerald, Haase, Pekka Räsänen, 2019-01-30 This comprehensive volume provides teachers, researchers, and education professionals with cutting-edge knowledge developed in the last decades by the educational, behavioural, and neurosciences integrating cognitive, developmental, and socioeconomic approaches to deal with the problems children face in learning mathematics. The neurocognitive mechanisms and the cognitive processes underlying acquisition of arithmetic abilities and their significance for education have been the subject of intense research in the last few decades but the most part of this research has been conducted in non-applied settings and there is still a deep discrepancy between the level of scientific knowledge and its implementation into actual educational settings. Now it's time to bring the results from the laboratory to the classroom. Apart from bringing the theoretical discussions to educational settings the volume presents a wide range of methods for early detection of children with risks in mathematics learning and strategies to develop effective interventions based on innovative cognitive test instruments. It also provides insights to translate research knowledge into public policies in order to address socioeconomic issues. And it does so from an international perspective dedicating a whole section to the cultural diversity of mathematics learning difficulties in different parts of the world. All of this makes the International Handbook of Mathematical Learning Difficulties an essential tool for those involved in the daily struggle to prepare the future generations to succeed in the global knowledge society.

Herbal Medicine in Andrology Ralf Henkel, Ashok Agarwal, 2020-11-13 Herbal Medicine in Andrology: An Evidence-Based Update provides a comprehensive overview of ethnomedical approaches in andrology, including ethnopharmacology of plant extracts and relevant bioactive compounds. It highlights information on the availability of medicinal plants and the legal and procedural processes involved in developing a marketable product. This reference helps clinicians and scientists develop an understanding on how herbal medicine can be used to treat andrological patients in practice. Only a limited number of journal articles are available on this topic, making this reference a valuable source of information for a large audience including urologists, andrologists, gynecologists, reproductive endocrinologists, and basic scientists. Provides essential evidence-based information about herbal medicine. Offers an ethnopharmacological background on bioactive compounds in certain plant extracts. Educates the basic scientist and clinician on the use of herbal medicines in andrology. Provides an update to recent advances on herbal medicine in andrology from world experts.

Quality Control of Mammalian Oocyte Meiotic Maturation: Causes, Molecular Mechanisms and Solutions Shao-Chen Sun, Xiang-Shun Cui, Heide Schatten, 2021-10-20 The Role of Global Air Pollution in Aging and Disease Caleb E. Finch, 2018-01-21 Global Air Pollution in Aging: Reading Smoke Signals is a complete reference connecting environmental pollution research to the human aging process. Since 1800, lifespans have more than doubled as infections declined and medicine improved. But the 20th century introduced a new global scourge of air pollution from fossil fuels with the potential to damage arteries, hearts, and lungs that has been related to chronic exposure of air pollution from fossil fuels Risk areas of study include childhood obesity brain damage associated with air pollution increased risk for autism in children and dementia in older adults In humans and animals air pollution stimulates chronic inflammation in different organs and genetic vulnerability to air pollution is being recognized particularly for carriers of the Alzheimer risk gene ApoE4 Connects environmental pollution research to the human aging process Raises new issues relevant to the controversies on air pollution and global warming challenging assumptions that lifespan will continue to increase in the 21st Century Examines the burden of air pollution to disadvantaged populations with anticipated greater impact in developing countries which rely on fossil fuels for economic development in future decades
