from conventional subcritical to supercritical thermal power plants greatly increased power generation efficiency. Now the introductions of the ultra supercritical USC and in the near future advanced ultra supercritical A USC designs are further efforts to reduce fossil fuel consumption in power plants and the associated carbon dioxide emissions. The higher operating temperatures and pressures found in these new plant types however necessitate the use of advanced materials. Provides researchers in academia and industry with an authoritative and systematic overview of the stronger high temperature materials required for both ultra supercritical and advanced ultra supercritical power plants. Covers materials for critical components in ultra supercritical power plants such as boilers rotors and turbine blades. Addresses advanced materials for future advanced ultra supercritical power plants such as superalloys new martensitic and austenitic steels. Includes chapters on technologies for welding technologies.
