Great Schools Report Card:

Great Leaders Equal Great Schools Autumn Cyprès, John Breckner, 2012-10-02 This 3 book series highlights the contributions of Tennessee politicians school leaders and academics to educational reform. It focuses on the Center for Educational Leadership's activities including leadership summits and policy discussions. The series is aimed at school leaders, scholars and policymakers involved in education.

The Great School Debate Thomas L. Good, Jennifer S. Braden, 2014-04-08 This book examines reform in American education over the past fifty years and against this backdrop presents a compelling analysis of why contemporary voucher plans and charter schools have yet to fulfill the expectations of their advocates. It is the only book to date to attempt a comprehensive synthesis and analysis of the emerging research base on vouchers and charter schools. Suitable for courses in school policy, school reform, school leadership or educational issues, it will also be of interest to anyone parents, teachers, policymakers directly involved with the charter school movement. Key features of this timely new book include the following: A Historical Perspective. The early chapters look at American educational reform over the past fifty years and analyze why these efforts have fallen short of their goals. Student Achievement Chapter 3 provides an insightful assessment of American students' school achievement from 1970 to the present and in the process counters the widely held myth that overall student achievement has deteriorated. Voucher Plans and Charter Schools Chapter 4 looks specifically at choice and vouchers in American education while chapters 5-7 provide a comprehensive and balanced examination of the charter school movement. Policy Recommendations The book concludes with explicit policy suggestions that attempt to balance the educational needs of children and youth against the rights of schools to experiment. Suggestions for developing broader coalitions to support public education particularly in the inner cities are also offered.

Excluded Richard D. Kahlenberg, 2023-07-11 An indictment of America's housing policy that reveals the social engineering underlying our segregation by economic class, the social and political fallout that result and what we can do about it. The last acceptable form of prejudice in America is based on class and executed through state sponsored economic discrimination which is hard to see because it is much more subtle than raw racism. While the American meritocracy officially denounces prejudice based on race and gender, it has spawned a new form of bias against those with less education and income. Millions of working class Americans have their opportunity blocked by exclusionary snob zoning. These government policies make housing unaffordable, frustrate the goals of the civil rights movement and lock in inequality in our urban and suburban landscapes. Through moving accounts of families excluded from economic and social opportunity as they are hemmed in through new redlining that limits the type of housing that can be built, Richard Kahlenberg vividly illustrates why America has a housing crisis. He also illustrates why economic segregation matters since where you live affects access to transportation, employment opportunities, decent health care and good schools. He shows that housing choice has been socially engineered to the benefit of the affluent and that astonishingly the most restrictive zoning is found in politically liberal cities where racial views are more progressive Despite this there is hope Kahlenberg tells the inspiring stories of growing number of local and national movements working to tear down the walls that inflicts so much damage on the lives of millions of Americans Virginia School Report Virginia. Normal Instructor and Teachers World,1912 School,1912 Education Report Card,1985 Funding Public Schools Kenneth K. Wong,1999 This book examines the fundamental role of politics in funding our public schools and fills a conceptual imbalance in the current literature in school finance and educational policy Unlike those who are primarily concerned about cost efficiency Kenneth Wong specifies how resources are allocated for what purposes at different levels of the government In contrast to those who focus on litigation as a way to reduce funding gaps he underscores institutional stalemate and the lack of political will to act as important factors that affect legislative deadlock in school finance reform Wong defines how politics has sustained various types of rules that affect the allocation of resources at the federal state and local level While these rules have been remarkably stable over the past twenty to thirty years they have often worked at cross purposes by fragmenting policy and constraining the education process at schools with the greatest needs Wong s examination is shaped by several questions How do these rules come about What role does politics play in retention of the rules Do the federal state and local governments espouse different policies In what ways do these policies operate at cross purposes How do they affect educational opportunities Do the policies cohere in ways that promote better and more equitable student outcomes Wong concludes that the five types of entrenched rules for resource allocation are rooted in existing governance arrangements and seemingly impervious to partisan shifts interest group pressures and constitutional challenge And because these rules foster policy fragmentation and embody initiatives out of step with the performance based reform agenda of the 1990s the outlook for positive change in public education is uncertain unless fairly radical approaches are employed Wong also analyzes four allocative reform models two based on the assumption that existing political structures are unlikely to change and two that seek to empower actors at the school level The two models for systemwide restructuring aimed at intergovernmental coordination and or integrated governance would seek to clarify responsibilities for public education among federal state and local authorities above all integrating political and educational accountability The other two models identified by Wong shift control from state and district to the school one based on local leadership and the other based on market forces In discussing the guiding principles of the four models Wong takes care to identify both the potential and limitations of each Written with a broad policy audience in mind Wong s book should appeal to professionals interested in the politics of educational reform and to teachers of courses dealing with educational policy and administration and intergovernmental relations Michigan Christian Advocate ,1904 The Maritime Farmer and Co-operative Dairyman ,1922 The Watchman-examiner ,1930
