Using the machine in any other way or ignoring the instructions for safe usage, maintenance and repair is considered "improper usage" (see 3.1) which will invalidate the guarantee, and the manufacturer will decline all responsibility, placing the blame with the user for damage or injury to himself or others in such cases.

Since the product is continuously being improved, you may find slight differences between your machine and the descriptions contained in this manual. Certain modifications can be made to the machine without prior warning and without the obligation to update the manual, although the general safety and functional characteristics will remain unchanged.
