GA	Georgia's A2A program exists, but the clear proof of it in the current legislative cycle and current funding sources have been quite opaque and Equity Forward has been unable to locate them at this time. Appropriations bill for FY2021 has an amendment to reduce the A2A program funding to $0, however, that amendment was voted down. There is not proof of what the appropriation was instead. Appropriations bill for FY2023 has appropriations for a vague pregnancy "comprehensive care management pilot" which could be it? But Georgia's A2A program has already been in place with a different name ("Positive Alternatives for Pregnancy"). Equity Forward continues to investigate this through public records analysis and partner work, and will update any changes to this information.
